

8th Meeting of the German-Japanese Society for Social Sciences
July 23-25, 2004
Department of Psychology
University of Hildesheim, Germany

“Culture and Development in Japan and Germany”

Ontogenetic development in Germany and Japan

Shigekazu Kusune (Kanazawa University, Kanazawa)

Development of self and the other in Japanese and German society

Makoto Kobayashi (Kyoto Koka Women's University, Kyoto)

A preliminary study on the conditions for forgiveness in cross-cultural comparison

Ernst Hany (University of Erfurt)

Understanding the own and other cultures – a matter of stages of cognitive development?

Celine Chang & Anna-Magdalena Ehret (University of Regensburg)

Evaluation of a German-Japanese Exchange Program

Social and economic change in Germany and Japan

David Chiavacci (University of Zürich)

The general middle class model under pressure: Mainstream Japan at a turning-point?

Mikiko Eswein (Heidelberg)

Hochschulreform unter dem Aspekt des Elite-Begriffs am Beispiel Japan und Deutschland

Friedrich Fürstenberg (University of Bonn)

Symbolic identification in corporate cultures: Socio-cultural patterns in Japan, Germany and Great Britain

Helmut Loiskandl (Tokiwa University, Mito)

The art of archery and the attractivity of chaos: Notes on societal change and cultural basics

Mototaka Mori (Waseda-Universität, Tokyo)

Neo-Nationalism or Pseudo-Nationalism: Is Ishihara's Phenomenon the Populism in Japan?

Takashi Namba (Nagoya College, Nagoya)

The process of reaching agreement in urban redevelopment: Case studies of Japanese cities

Christian Oberländer (Martin-Luther-Universität Halle-Wittenberg)

Citizens' concerns for a decent future struggling against established interests: The case of the movement for the “Renewable Energy Promotion Law” in Japan

Akira Tokuyasu (Hosei University, Tokyo)

Economy and moral: Socially responsible investing in Germany and Japan

Models of ontogenetic and culture-genetic change

Kurt A. Heller & Angelika Lengfelder (Universität of Munich)

Evaluation Study of the International Academic Olympiads: Three Decades of Cross-cultural and Gender Findings from North-American, European and East-Asian Olympians

Hans-Joachim Kornadt (University of the Saar, Saarbrücken)
School systems in Japan and Germany from a psychological perspective

Florian Klapproth (Technical University of Berlin)
Mental models of growth

Alexander Thomas (University of Regensburg)
Theoretical concept on development of intercultural competence

Rieko Tomo (Doshisha Women's College, Kyoto)
A comparison of change in developmental expectancy toward children between 1960 and 2000 in Japan and Germany: Which is more important for children, hardships or supports?